PRINTABLE CHECKLIST

Checklist for a south-facing flat

Take it to the site visit with a compass set to true north. One column per flat. In a south-facing flat, the exact position of the main door matters more than the word "south".

FLAT A	FLAT B
☐	☐	1. Main door bearing read from the centre of the flat Stand at the centre, point the compass at the middle of the door opening, note the degrees. Not at the door itself.
☐	☐	2. The door's pada named from the bearing Eight padas share the south; they grade very differently.
☐	☐	3. Door in Vitatha or Grihakshata? Vitatha (157.5°–168.75°) and Grihakshata (168.75°–180°) are the two Ideal padas of the south.
☐	☐	4. Door not in Mriga (213.75°–225°) or Pitra (225°–236.25°) Both are Critical. No remedy short of construction changes them.
☐	☐	5. If Pusha (146.25°–157.5°): which reading applies to you Auspicious for a salaried household, inauspicious for a business-owning one.
☐	☐	6. North-east free of toilet, kitchen and staircase Each of these in the north-east is Critical.
☐	☐	7. South-west corner present and intact A missing or cut south-west corner is a Major defect.
☐	☐	8. Centre not blocked by a wall, pillar or heavy structure The centre (Brahmasthan) should stay open.
☐	☐	9. Puja room not in the south, and not under a staircase Either is a Major defect.
☐	☐	10. No toilet above or below the puja room or kitchen Ask what sits in the same position in the flats above and below. Either is Critical.
