PRINTABLE CHECKLIST

Checklist for a south-facing house

For a site visit, with a compass set to true north. In a south-facing home the exact position of the main door matters more than the word "south".

HOME A	HOME B
☐	☐	1. Main door bearing read from the centre of the home Line from the centre to the middle of the door opening; note the degrees.
☐	☐	2. The door's pada named from the bearing The south side runs from 135° to 225°: eight padas, S1 to S8.
☐	☐	3. Door in an Ideal south pada? Vitatha (157.5°–168.75°) and Grihakshata (168.75°–180°) are Ideal. Mriga (213.75°–225°) is Critical.
☐	☐	4. No toilet, kitchen or staircase in the north-east Each of these in the north-east is Critical.
☐	☐	5. No staircase at the centre of the home A staircase at the centre (Brahmasthan) is Critical.
☐	☐	6. No toilet above or below the puja room or kitchen Ask about the floors above and below. Either is Critical.
☐	☐	7. South-west corner present and intact A missing or cut south-west corner is a Major defect.
☐	☐	8. Centre open, not blocked by a wall or pillar A blocked centre is a Major defect.
☐	☐	9. Master bedroom not in the north-east or south-east The south-west is Ideal for it.
☐	☐	10. Puja room not in the south, and not under a staircase Either is a Major defect.
